Their deareſt action in the tented field,
And little of this great world can I ſpeake,
More then pertaines to feate of broyle, and battaile,
And therefore little ſhall I grace my cauſe,
In ſpeaking for my ſelfe; yet by your gracious patience,
I will a round vnuarniſh'd tale deliuer,
Of my whole courſe of loue, what drugs, what charmes,
What coniuration, and what mighty Magicke,
(For ſuch proceedings am I charg'd withall:)
I wonne his daughter.

Bra. A maiden neuer bold of ſpirit,
So ſtill and quiet, that her motion
Bluſht at her ſelfe: and ſhe in ſpite of nature,
Of yeares, of Country, credit, euery thing,
To fall in loue with what ſhe fear'd to looke on?
It is a iudgement maimd, and moſt imperfect,
That will confeſſe perfection, ſo would erre
Againſt all rules of Nature, and muſt be driuen,
To finde out practiſes of cunning hell,
Why this ſhould be, I therefore vouch againe,
That with ſome mixtures powerfull ore the blood,
Or with ſome dram coniur'd to this effect,
He wrought vpon her.

Du. To youth this is no proofe,
Without more certaine and more ouert teſt,
Theſe are thin habits, and poore likelihoods,
Of moderne ſeemings, you preferre againſt him.

1 Sena. But Othello ſpeake,
Did you by indirect and forced courſes,
Subdue and poiſon this young maides affections?
Or came it by requeſt, and ſuch faire queſtion,
As ſoule to ſoule affoordeth?

Oth. I doe beſeech you,
Send for the Lady to the Sagittar,
And let her ſpeake of me before her father;
If you doe finde me foule in her report,
Not onely take away, but let your ſentence

Euen fall vpon my life.

Du. Fetch Deſdemona hither.

Oth. Ancient conduct them, you
And till ſhe come, as faithfull as to h
So iuſtly to your graue eares I'le pre
How I did thriue in this faire Ladyes
And ſhe in mine.

Du. Say it Othello.

Oth. Her Father loued me, oft in
Still queſtioned me the ſtory of my li
From yeare to yeare; the battailes, ſe
That I haue paſt:
I ran it through, euen from my boyi
Toth' very moment that he bade me
Wherein I ſpake of moſt diſaſtrous
Of mouing accident of flood and f
Of heire-breadth ſcapes ith imminen
Of being taken by the inſolent foe:
And ſold to ſlauery, and my redempt
And with it all my trauells Hiſtorie;
Wherein of Antrees vaſt, and Deſert
Rough quarries, rocks and hils, who
It was my hent to ſpeake, ſuch was t
And of the Cannibals, that each othe
The Anthropophagie, and men whoſe
Doe grow beneath their ſhoulders
Would Deſdemona ſeriouſly incline;
But ſtill the houſe affaires would dra
And euer as ſhe could with haſt diſp
Shee'd come againe, and with a gree
Deuoure vp my diſcourſe; which I
Tooke once a plyant houre, and fou
To draw from her a prayer of earnes
That I would all my pilgrimage dil
Whereof by parcell ſhe had ſometh
But not intentiuely, I did conſent,
And often did beguile her of her tea
